

Check Parameter values	  a Problem no consistent final value; spread entire range parameter might be insensitive/not inferable with given data; consider sensitivity analysis to check    b Problem converges but against limit of parameter range parameter range (here lower limit) might be too restricted; consider widening range    c No Problem all trials consistent; converge within parameter range success 	[used in Sect. 2.6]
Check Obj. function values – Single-objective –	  d Problem downward trend of each trial; no plateau convergence criterion or budget used likely not appropriate; consider adjusting    e Problem trials converge but not to consistent value increase budget or try another calibration algorithm; parameter ranges might be too wide    f No Problem all trials plateau; converge to similar values success 	[used in Sect. 2.8]
Check Obj. function values – Multi-objective –	  g Problem degenerated front (only visible when magnifying) objectives are not independent; consider using only subset of objective functions    h Problem front not consistent with single-objective references results not converged yet; increase budget or try another calibration algorithm    i No Problem front visible and consistent with single-objective references success 	[used in Sect. 2.9]
Check Fit of simulations and observations	  j Problem? fit favors high observation values if this is not desired, consider replacing, e.g., MSE with mean absolute error (MAE), or log-transform data    k Problem? fit favors low observation values if this is not desired, consider higher weights for large y-values and errors (e.g., use MSE, not MAE)    l Problem? fit focuses on average behavior if this is not desired, consider weights for y-values or change objective function entirely    m Problem generally poor fit; wide spread of trials parameter ranges might be too narrow; potentially consider revising model if ranges already wide    n Problem fit follows trend of data; wide spread of trials parameter ranges too wide or budget for calibration too low; consider revising    o No Problem fit follows trend of data; narrow spread of trials success 	[used in Sect. 2.7] [used in Sect. 2.6]